CHILD KILLED AS STORK WAS BRINGING BABE

Five Year Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith Killed Under Auto

BABY BORN AT 12 P. M.

Father Was Hastening For Aid When He Ran Over His Eldest Son

The joy attendant the birth of a baby daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, who reside a mile west of Franklin Grove, at midnight, was swallowed up in the great sorrow which befell the family four hours earlier when Herbert, their five-year old son, met a tragic death under the wheels of his father's automobile as Mr. Smith was backing out of the agra to get aid for the expectant mother.

It was about 8 o'clock Sunday evening when the father went out to get the car in which he expected to get aid for his wife, Herbert, eldest of their four children, followed him out to the barn but, according to the grief-stricken parents, turned and started back toward the house.

Backed Over Him.

Believing the child had returned to the house the father backed the machine out when suddenly the shrieks of the child brought knowledge of his presence there. Instantly Mr. Smith stopped the machine and leaped to the ground where the child lay prostrate, and almost dead. The rear wheel of the car had cruelly crushed the tender little body from the shoulder to the pit of the stomach. He was beyond medical aid, and his death was almost instantaneous.

Funeral Tomorrow

Coroner Whetston arrived in Franklin Grove this morning and conducted an inquest, the verdict of the jury being accidental death. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning.

The tragedy has shocked the people of Franklin Grove and vicinity and the sincere condolence of the entire community is reaching out to comfort the bereaved parents.

Revolt and Mutiny.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, July 22.—Serious revolt among civilians and soldiers in Bohemia and Hungary. At Manros-Szjet, 150 officers and 500 Czechoslovaks who mutinied were shot and a further 3,000 were arrested. From reliable sources news has come to hand that there have been various mutinies in Dalmatia and Bohemia. Jugo-Slav soldiers have deserted by the wholesale and escaped to the mountains after killing their officers. Armed bands, completely organized, are said to be operating in some districts.

DIXON LADY'S FATHER CALLED BY HIS MAKER

MRS. W. H. SMITH IS CALLED TO ATKINSON BY THE PASSING OF HER PARENT

Henry Lyon, of Atkinson, Ill., passed away at 9:15 Friday evening at his home, and his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Smith, and his wife, who had been visiting her daughter left this morning for Atkinson. He is survived by one other daughter, Mrs. Helen Ramsom, of Atkinson. W. H. Smith and son, Dale, went to Atkinson Sunday. The funeral was held today. Mr. Lyon was eighty-three years and nine months old and had been ailing for some time though his death came as a sudden shock to his family.

DIXON MAN CHARGED WITH KIDNAPPING HIS FOUR LITTLE CHILDREN

Warrant Issued For Arrest Of Albert Waldron On That Charge Today

LEFT SUNDAY MORN

Was Permitted To Have Children During Sunday Failed To Return Them

Albert D. Waldron faces arrest and prosecution on the charge of kidnapping, on which charge a warrant was issued for him this morning by Justice Hannaken, as a result of his failure to return to their mother, Mrs. Amanda Waldron, their four children, according to orders issued last week by Judge O. E. Heard in the Circuit Court.

Under the orders of the court the father was to have the children, Leola, George, Grace and Bertha, ranging in age from 4 to 11 years, each Sunday from 9 a. m. until 8 p. m. In compliance with the orders the mother yesterday attired the little ones in their coolest clothing and sent them to the store where they were to meet their father.

Left in Morning.

He was there waiting for them, but instead of sending them to the Grace Evangelical Sunday School, as the court decree directed, he took them to his rooming house on First street.

Investigation shows that shortly after 9 o'clock he took the little ones out the rear door of the house, through the garden and to the Northwestern passenger station, where he purchased one full fare and two half-fare tickets to Clinton, probably expecting to get the two smaller children through without paying fare.

No further trace of them has been found and it is believed they boarded the 10:20 a. m. train Sunday. This morning the warrant was issued and officials at Clinton have been notified. Waldron has relatives at Hayes Center, Neb., and Oklahoma City, and the officials at those places have also been notified of the circumstances and asked to arrest him if he shows up at either place.

FOUR CARS IN COLLISION TODAY

Two Ford cars came together on the road near the milk factory this morning, one of which was turned over. The occupants in the cars were thrown out but no one was injured. After the cars were straightened out one of the men fainting, but recovered very soon. While the Ford people were getting back "on their feet," a gentleman driving a Briscoe car, from Aurora, stopped his car to investigate the accident, and while his car was standing by the roadside a gentleman driving an Overland ran into the Briscoe car, damaging one of the fenders badly. The Briscoe was brought to the city for repairs. The names of the drivers were not secured.

WILL BE READY OCT. 1

New Yards, Round House, Machine Shops, Etc., Are Being Constructed

Nothing has ever happened in the history of Amboy that is bringing more satisfaction to the citizens of that enterprising city than the improvements now being made by the Illinois Central Railway company. Amboy has taken unto herself new life. Every dwelling house is occupied and there is a waiting list of tenants. Every business house is occupied and business is exceedingly good.

When the citizens heard of the proposed improvements—now a reality—people of Amboy doubted, for there are always people who doubt the possibility of every "improvement" rumor. Now, since the work has begun and is under headway, there are many people who are endeavoring to figure out the motive behind the scheme.

Agent Carmichael is a busy man. He is looking after his routine duties in addition to the manifold duties placed upon his shoulders by the recent improvement work. Between his office and yard work he does not get much time for recreation. There is Green river, filled with game fish, but Agent Carmichael finds no time for fishing. However, he is one of the proudest agents of the entire system, for he now looks after one of the most important division points of the entire system.

Is Central Location.

Not very long ago the directors of the company decided that they must get busy somewhere between Dubuque and Clinton and improve yards and make an increase in yardage. The business demanded such work. After looking the ground over they came to the conclusion that Amboy was the best possible location and

DIXON DESCRIBED AS MOST INTERESTING OF STOPS ON HIGHWAY

Automobile Editor of Chicago Daily News Gives This City Special Mention

TELLS OF ITS HISTORY

Says Lincoln Highway Is the Best Route Across Illinois at Present

The automobile editor of the Chicago Daily News published the following article concerning the Lincoln Highway in Saturday evening's issue, in which special mention was given Dixon:

The trip to Clinton is best negotiated over the Lincoln Highway. The roadbed is made up of brick, gravel, macadam, sand and dirt, alternating in stretches of various road not altogether good, but not impassably bad.

Construction to Be Started.

Permanent construction is about to be started between Geneva and the Mississippi river, and although the roads may not be completed for the next two years, the tendency is to improve the highway as rapidly as possible, bringing road conditions up to a better efficiency.

For all tourists going west through Illinois, the Lincoln highway is by far the better route, as it is not so dependent on weather conditions as other roads leading westward.

Lincoln Highway Best Road.

The route to Dubuque through Rockford and the road to Princeton and Davenport are affected by rains and it is not wise to attempt these except after dry periods. For those traveling to Davenport it is expedient to follow the Lincoln highway as far as Sterling and thence to Davenport by way of Lyndon and Moline. The western exit by way of Dubuque through Freeport and Shullsburg is to be avoided because of miserable roads and hilly sections.

This trip over the Lincoln highway from Lake Michigan to the Father of Waters passes through the most fertile part of Illinois, a land of rolling prairie, inset with field and wood, meadow and upland.

Dixon an Historic Town.

The most interesting stop is Dixon. Here, during the Blackhawk war of 1832 were met the pioneers of the south and west. Time plays strange tricks and fate often sets the stage of history in odd corners. Here at Dixon's Ferry, Abraham Lincoln marched with Zachary Taylor, hero of the Mexican war, who afterward became president of the United States, and here by the flare of the camp fire Lincoln met Jefferson Davis, and into this circle came young Anderson and Albert Sidney Johnston. Time shifts the scenes, Anderson becomes the defender of Fort Sumter, Jefferson Davis the president of the confederacy, and Albert Johnston dies a victor on the field of Shiloh. Today Dixon, the city, holds the stage and through its streets is heard the rumble of a long procession of government motor trucks.

U-BOAT SINKS BARGES CLOSE TO U. S. SHORE

Thousands Stand on Beach And Watch German Raider's Operations

HAPPENS OFF CAPE COD

Diver Submerges When U. S. Airplanes Appear On The Scene

Orleans, Mass., July 21.—An enemy submarine attacked a tug and its tow off the easternmost point of Cape Cod today, sank three barges set a fourth and their tug on fire and dropped four shells on the mainland. The action lasted an hour and was unchallenged except by two hydroplanes from the Chatham aviation station, which circled over the U-boat, causing her to submerge for only a moment to reappear and resume firing.

Throughout the one-sided battle the American flag waved proudly. An 11-year-old boy in one of the barges grabbed a flag, which was one of his boyish possessions, and shook it defiantly at the U-boat.

The boy carried the flag to shore in one of the lifeboats. He held it proudly above his head as he stepped on land.

Several Are Wounded.

The crews of the tow, numbering forty-one, and including three women and five children, escaped amid the shell fire in lifeboats. Several were wounded. John Botovich, an Austrian, of the crew of the tug, was the only one seriously hurt. His right arm near the shoulder was torn away by a fragment of shell. The minor injuries of the others were from shell splinters.

The largest were in tow of the tug Perth Amboy, owned by the Lehigh Valley railroad, and were bound from Gloucester for New York. One was loaded with stone but the others were light, being on their return trip after bringing coal to New England.

Attack Without Warning.

The attack was without warning and only the poor marksmanship of the German gunners permitted the escape of the crews.

HUNS BATTLE MADLY TO SAVE ARMY CAUGHT IN SOISSONS-RHEIMS HOLE

Crown Prince Calls For Help From Armies Of The North To Save His Pursued and Defeated Divisions In the Soissons-Rheims Pocket—French and Americans Stop German Counter Attacks and Advance Lines In Many Places—Prisoners Continue to Pour Back Through Lines

BULLETIN.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

With the American Army on the Aisne-Marne Front, July 22, 2 P. M.—The Germans are clinging desperately to the line south of Soissons in an effort to protect their flanks.

The Americans fighting on this front have completed the cutting of the narrow gauge railroad to Chateau Thierry.

The pounding process is being continued by the American and other allied forces in this sector, keeping the Germans uncertain from moment to moment regarding the allied intentions.

French Have Gained More Ground.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Paris, July 22.—Pushing in south of Soissons the French have taken over the oSissons-Chateau Thierry road opposite Buzenoy, the Temps announces today.

Pershing Reports Crossing Marne.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, July 22.—Official reports from General Pershing confirm the crossing of the Marne by the allies, and also report the occupation of considerable territory north of Chateau Thierry. Details are lacking.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Rear guard actions are being fought by the Germans north of Chateau Thierry, probably organized for the purpose of delaying the relentless pursuit of the fleeing enemy by the French and Americans, who Sunday morning passed through Chateau Thierry and advanced northeast of that cornerstone of German conquest in eastern France.

The re-action of the Germans is especially marked between Griolles and Bezu-St. Germain, two villages north and northwest of Chateau Thierry, a distance of approximately 7 miles and 4 miles. The distance between Griolles and Bezu-St. Germain is four miles. Along this line German counter attacks have been broken and the allied line has been maintained.

North of the Ourcq river the enemy re-action has been limited to artillery fire. This has been the case also between the Marne and Rheims.

Since the Germans were ousted at Chateau Thierry, under conditions that suggested the utmost precipitation, the most interesting developments in the battle are south of Soissons, where the Americans are reported to have advanced a mile and a quarter and in the Ourcq valley the allies are steadily pounding their way toward Nanteuil-Notre Dame and west of Rheims, where there seem to be indications that the allies are initiating a new drive for the purpose of outflanking the Germans between Marfaux and Chatillon.

If this last move develops, the allies "nut cracker" will be in full motion. If the French, Italian and British troops southwest of Rheims make an advance of any importance, the position of the Germans further south will be even more critical.

There appears to be at least two and possibly three enveloping operations on the west side of the salient south of Soissons. The first of these was evidenced by the breaking through of the allies in the north on Sunday, which immediately resulted in forcing the Germans back in the extreme tip of the salient. The second is proceeding up the Ourcq valley and on last accounts was near Oulchy-le-Chateau. The third is the advance of the allies south of Soissons.

Thus General Foch has projected his tentacles eastward to catch the German retreat from the Marne. If another claw is thrust out from Rheims the situation becomes much more perilous for the enemy. If the allied "nut cracker" continues to close in the remorseless manner of the last three days the Germans will be fortunate if they extricate their forces from the Soissons-Rheims pocket.

The railroads are virtually all under the control or heavy fire of the allies and the enemy must retreat over wagon roads.

Berlin admits the withdrawal north and east of Chateau Thierry, after crossing the Marne. Elsewhere the Berlin reports says, the allies were repulsed with heavy losses. They claim severe losses for the American troops. The admission that General Foch's blow was a surprise is also made.

Americans Cross the Marne.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

London, July 22.—American troops yesterday crossed the River Marne between Charveves and Gland, east of Chateau Thierry, and captured the wood of Barbillon, according to an authoritative announcement made here today.

Huns Resist Stubbornly.

The Germans are still stubbornly resisting the French crossing of the Marne but the French succeeded in getting two elements over at Mezy and Courcelles which are constructing foot bridges under a heavy fire. The Germans are using gas shells in large numbers.

Owing to faulty working of the telegraph line between Paris and London the news up until 8:30 last night was not very detailed.

It is learned, however, that the French line now runs from Breny along the main Chateau Thierry road to Ro-court and then through the Le Charme and Epieds to the Marne at Charveves.

French Stop Counter Attacks.

Between the Ourcq and the Aisne the Germans are again making violent counter attacks but the French are maintaining their line.

The object of the enemy counter attack is to expedite the extrication of his troops from the pocket between Soissons and Rheims, and meanwhile the German troops in the Southern end of the pocket must be experiencing great difficulties in getting supplies.

Southwest of Rheims there has been heavy fighting, and the French have made progress there.

Between the Ourcq and the Marne rivers the French yesterday took 400 prisoners. On every front the Germans are putting up a desperate resistance and launching violent counter attacks, but nevertheless the French troops yesterday progressed along the Marne to a maximum depth of 8 miles.

The capture of Barbillon wood by the Americans means that the overseas men have advanced between 3 and 4 miles beyond their old position on the Marne.

Crown Prince Calls for Aid.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

With the French Army, July 22.—Frederick William, German Imperial Crown Prince, has been obliged to call for help from his cousin, Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. German divisions from the armies in the north are being hurried down to help protect the west flank of the defeated army which has been driven back over the Marne and ejected from Chateau Thierry by the Franco-American troops.

The region immediately south of Soissons forms the key to the German positions and here the enemy has concentrated a heavy force in an effort to hold back the advancing tide of allied troops. The latter continue to progress, although the fighting is growing heavier each hour.

The number of prisoners taken by the allies is even more than has been announced and new batches are continually arriving. The number of unwounded prisoners so far taken far exceeds the total casualties of the allied troops.

The correspondent has seen large numbers of the prisoners, and from their appearance, they are certainly picked men. The number of undamaged cannon taken is very large and is constantly increasing, as well as large quantities of ammunition.

The allied armies under command of General Mangin and General De Goutte on this flank have averaged an advanced of over ten kilometres while General Bertalot, who is smashing in the other side of the pocket containing the defeated German army, has also progressed appreciably. The French and Americans and British are working with the closest cooperation and in absolute confidence.

Break Up Counter Attacks.

(By Associated Press Leased Wire)

Paris, July 22.—Strong counter attacks by the Germans between Ourcq and the Marne have been broken up by the allies. All our positions have been maintained. The enemy delivered a counter blow in the region of Griolles, several miles northwest of Chateau Thierry and at Bezu-St. Germain, four miles north of Chateau Thierry. North of the Ourcq, between the Marne and Rheims, the enemy reaction was limited to artillery fire.

Italians Gaining in Albania.

(By Associated Press Leased Wire)

Rome, July 22.—Italian troops continue to gain ground in the big bend of the Devoli river in Albania, the Italian war office announces. Advancing troops yesterday took 100 prisoners and 7 machine guns.

Fresh Success For Americans.

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

Washington, July 22.—Fresh success for the American forces in their drive between the Aisne and the Marne were reported in General Pershing's communique for yesterday, received today by the war department. The Americans were driving ahead with undiminished vigor and spirit, the report stated.

More than 6,000 prisoners and over 100 cannon and many trench mortars and machine guns have been taken by the American divisions within the last few days on the Aisne-Marne front, General Pershing reports. This was taken as meaning that the reference in Saturday's statement to 17,000 prisoners included those captured by both the French and American units.

There is nothing to report in section B, the report adds.

German General Quits Job.

(By Associated Press Leased Wire)

Amsterdam, July 22.—General Von Francois, commander of the 7th Army corps on the west front, has resigned, according to the Lokal Anzeiger. The Emperor has refused to accept the resignation and has given him an honorary appointment in a guard regiment. The Anzeiger hopes the General's absence from the army will be only temporary.

Thinks Yanks Ten Million Strong.

(By Associated Press Leased Wire)

With the American Army on the Aisne-Marne Front, July 21.—Delayed—A German prisoner captured by the Americans today, was formerly a baker in New York City. When asked what the German soldiers thought about the Americans, he said:

"Since Thursday the Germans have considered that the announcement that there are a million soldiers in France is false, and rumors among the Germans on this front are that there are ten million American soldiers in France."

Yanks Take 17,000

(By Associated Press Leased Wire)

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Prisoners captured by American forces alone up to an early hour Sunday totaled 17,000, General Pershing reports in his statement for yesterday. The report was received at the war department tonight. The number of guns captured was 560.

Despite fierce counter attacks and rear guard actions, Comelles, Ro-vet, St. Albin and Maubry had been entered by the Americans before 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Paris, July 21.—Important gains by the French, American, Italian and British troops in the territory comprising the Soissons-Reims salient are reported in the official communication issued by the war office tonight.

The heights east of La Croix and Crisolle have been taken, a considerable section north of Chateau Thierry has been cleared of the Germans and St. Euphrase and Bouilly, southwest of Reims, have been captured.

By this movement General Foch's "hub-crackers" imperil all the Germans in the Soissons-Reims salient. La Croix and Grisoles are on the west side of the salient, and St. Euphrase and Bouilly are on the east side. Thus the escape of the Germans in the narrow space becomes hourly more uncertain.

Chateau Thierry Falls

With the French Army in France, July 21.—By the Associated Press—Chateau Thierry, the corner stone of the line of the farthest German advance, fell early this morning when the French occupied the city, driving the Germans before them.

The enemy has begun his retreat northward under heavy pressure from all sides, French, Americans and British all participating in the thrust to push the Germans back.

Retreat May Go Far.

Where the retreat will end cannot be conjectured, as everything will depend on the will of the allied commander in chief.

The German position in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry was doomed from the moment their divisions crossed the Marne.

Franco-American troops carried out an encircling movement from the northwest at the same time, and made it absolutely impossible for the enemy to withdraw.

In the course of the night, reconnaissances were effected by French to test the strength of the Germans still in the city, and shortly after dawn the allied reoccupation became a fact.

Break Enemy Lines.

With the American Army on the Marne, July 21.—By the Associated Press—The French and Americans have broken through the German lines northwest of Chateau Thierry.

The French and Americans, driving the spearhead toward the northeast, have already advanced five kilometers (3 1-10 miles) at various places.

American forces captured hill 193 north of Vaux, and advanced two miles. At last accounts they were still holding their own against Ger-

AMERICA IS PREPARING FOR TWO YEARS' FIGHT

John H. Byers Gave Interesting Address at Methodist Church Yesterday

CALLS FOR LOYALTY

Predicts More Stringent Laws Concerning Disloyalty Will Be Passed

Several hundred people braved the heat last evening and attended the patriotic services at the Methodist church. All songs by the choir were of a patriotic nature and the address of the occasion was delivered by John H. Byers, secretary to Mr. Byers discussed the war proposition from three standpoints—before, now and after. He did not enter into the cause of the great war, saying that now that our country was engaged in the war, it was a question of doing everything to win the war, and it began to look very much as if American would be the real factor in winning the war.

America must finance the great war as well as furnish millions of young men to do the fighting. Food is another very important question in winning the war.

Big Appropriations.

The speaker told how congress had appropriated billions of dollars in short periods of time, and that congress stood ready to appropriate much more if necessary. He said the plans were being made for a two-year war from this date, and cautioned the people against being too sure of bringing the war to a speedy close because of the splendid work of the American army in France. He said that Germany was not yet whipped, and was getting along remarkably well with her part of the great war, but it will not be done in six months," remarked the speaker.

Russia Is Problem.

One of the perplexing questions is Russia. When that great country does one thing or the other, come out on the side of Germany or aid the allies, and means it, then the program must and will be materially rearranged.

Mr. Byers told in detail just what the U. S. government was doing for her soldiers in matters of sanitation, equipment, medical aid, Red Cross work and training camps. "The soldiers find no cause to complain of their government. Uncle Sam treats his soldiers like his own sons, as they are."

Need of Loyalty.

"Loyalty in America will aid materially in winning the war. Loyalty will give the soldiers comfort and will make them brave and enthusiastic in fighting the battles for liberty and freedom. There is some room in the United States for improvement along the lines of loyalty and in time to come, and not far away at that, more stringent rules will be made concerning the punishment of those here who are disloyal," he declared.

Predicts U. S. of Europe.

Mr. Byers declared that after the war, when the Kaiser and his government had been destroyed, there would be in the land across the sea a United States of Europe, similar to the United States of America, and that each country would be a state, with a central capital, where each country would be under the jurisdiction of a president. "If that is the ultimate result of the war, then something wonderful in the way of government of the world will have been accomplished, and America, the country we all love so much, will have performed her part well and will have done a wonderful work."

Sgt. John Rosbrook was home on Sunday from Camp Grant to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tryon Rosbrook.

Miss Pauline Brass and her mother visited at the Conrad Smith home in Ashton, Saturday night and Sunday.

Fred. Vaughn was home Sunday from Camp Grant.

Mrs. Ida Hart of Nachusa was in town today.

FROCKS FOR SUNNY AFTERNOONS SHOW CHARMS OF SUMMER GOWNS

Country Club time is here, and also the time for Country Club clothes, both of the sport and dress variety. From every side come reports of the popularity of the sleeveless sport coat, sometimes worn with a matching skirt and sometimes with a skirt of white or some contrasting color. Even as riding habits, these coats have taken the place of sweaters of wool or silk. Baronette satin is used for many of the separate skirts, and with these fascinating skirts are worn thin waists of Georgette crepe, silk crepe or voile. Afternoon dresses of the more formal variety are made of Georgette crepe, draped tunic is one piece, softly pleated at the waistline. As all skirts are narrow this year, this is no exception, for it measures but one and one-half yards at the lower edge. The sleeves are made of white chiffon for coolness.

Lace dresses are considered very smart, also. Sometimes the tunic is of chintilly lace, either draped on the hips or simply gathered at the waist. The underdress is usually of white, golden yellow or some other fairly light color, giving almost a fairy-like appearance to the delicate lace. Often the sleeves are quite long, and rather tight, and the neck may be of the collarless variety. Sashes or girdles of a harmonizing shade are crushed about the waist, ending either in long fringed ends or a huge Japanese bow.

About Color Scheme
There has been a good deal of talk about the psychological effect of the war on women's clothes, and much discussion as to the right and wrong of new clothes at all. From our allies we are getting numerous proofs that the men who have returned from the front "on leave" notice the clothes the women are wearing. If this be the case the same thing holds true in the case of the men who are going "over there." Surely it is our duty as well as our privilege to dress as well as we can.

Of Figured Chiffon Over White Silk
chiffon, or satin. With these costumes, the cape's the thing, made of satin or heavy silk, and a hat with a sheer brim, perhaps of Georgette crepe or chiffon. Then, too, organdie dresses and their accompanying organdie hats are very much the vogue for afternoon wear. Some of these dainty frocks have hemstitching in the waist and skirt, forming an intricate design, the only trimming deemed necessary. Ruffles, however, are ever dear to the heart of the summer girl, and are in no wise neglected this year. One finds them on every type of dress, from the almost tailored morning frock to the flimsiest of evening dresses. Petticoats (for we are once more indulging in these luxuries!) are much beruffled. Indeed, all that is possible has been done to insure a delightful stage setting for summer, 1918.

For Sunny Afternoons
Only the thinnest things appeal to one as the mercury mounts, and, after all, it is the thin materials that seem to suit one's moods. There are so many pretty new designs in the thin materials. Printed chiffons, voiles and marquisettes that delight one by their very daintiness. The big sprightly figures that seem to be favorites this season are, as a rule in some dark color, a decided green, blue, rose or violet on a white or cream ground. The dress illustrated here was of printed chiffon, giving the effect at a distance of gray, for the figures were black on a white ground, made over white silk. The

Odd Hip Drapery on Printed Voile Dress

Colors play an important part. In many of the hospitals where wounded soldiers are being nursed back to health, the colors of their surroundings are considered as much almost as their medicine and other treatment. Colors that we are wearing this summer are gay, and feminine, and it is right that they should be so. We, "over here," must do all in our power to keep things bright and cheerful.

Where Figures Count
Another design developed in figured voile is illustrated here. The odd hip drapery is a decided style feature, the collar and straps are cut in one and it is the straps that hold this drapery in place. This is truly a dress of distinction.

For Outing.
Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Lumsden and son Newell will leave this week for the Epworth camp grounds near Elgin for two weeks' camping.

Fables and Parables.
Of the fable as distinguished from the parable there are but two examples in the Bible. The first of these is that of the trees choosing their king (Judges 9:8-15); the second that of the cedar of Lebanon and the thistle (II Kings 14:9).

new physical ruling, which places the minimum requirements of weight and height at 110 pounds, and five feet tall. Men under these requirements will be rejected from general service. The weight and height minimum requirements have been changed three times this year. In May minimum was 116 pounds and the height minimum was 5 feet, 4 inches. In January the minimum was 100 pounds and 59 1/2 inches.

Limited Service Men And Colored 4Men 4To 4Be Called Early

NEW PHYSICAL RULES

Men Under 110 Pounds Or Less Than Five Feet Tall Cannot Serve

The Local Board for Lee county today issued the following lists of limited service men who will be sent into service about July 29, and colored men, who will be sent from this county about August 1.

Lee county is required to furnish five limited service men, white, from class one, to go within five days following July 29. The men who have been called for this contingent are: Oscar Elsworth Schoenholz, Comp-ton, William Philip Burhan, Jr., Chilli-cothe, Mo. Fred Enichen, Dixon, Francis Wilbur Heckman, Dixon, Henry Francis Briscoe, Dixon. They will be sent from Dixon of Syracuse, N. Y.

The Colored Contingent
Lee county is also called upon to furnish five colored men, fit for general military service, from class one. They will be sent to Camp Grant, at Rockford, during the five days following August 1. The men called to fill this contingent are: James Dickerson, Dixon, Howard Johnson, R. F. D. 4, Dixon, William Stones, Dixon, George William Strange, Dixon, Ernest Nelson, Dixon.

No Physical Rules.
The Local Board has received a

THE MAN'S SIDE
Men do not waste their time and strength doing work that machines will do quicker and better. The tractor, the typewriter, motor truck—thousands of machines are bought by men to save work, shorten their work-day and increase their efficiency.

THE WOMAN'S SIDE
Are women any more able to stand hard work than men? They have a right to the labor-saving Hoosier to cut their kitchen work in half and save them miles of steps and hours of needless toil.

Give Her This Kitchen Help for These Hot Days

THE Hoosier Cabinet is a labor-saving machine with 40 work reducing devices. It is also a germ-proof food container, saving supply by preventing waste in measuring and mixing and by keeping flour, sugar, spices, bread and cake in protected places.

Moreover, the Hoosier is a ready-made Kitchen System. The Motion-Saving Arrangement is the result of scientific motion study. There are places for 400 articles within arm's reach—and the most used things are nearest at hand, like the careful arrangement of a typewriter keyboard.

Mrs. Frank Amble Pattison, the domestic efficiency engineer, proved that Hoosier saves about two miles of walking per day in doing kitchen work. It saves hours of time besides.

Any woman can easily buy a Hoosier on our popular purchase plan. Pay only $1 on delivery, balance $1 weekly.

EXCHANGING PRISONERS

England has just begun to exchange prisoners with Germany. The first Germans returned to their Fatherland are reported to be sadly disappointed. They complain that the food is far worse in quality and much less in quantity than that they were given in the British prison camps, and that they are forced to perform intolerably hard war tasks.

The British, on the contrary, rejoice to return home, and with good reason. Many of them are physical wrecks. Nearly all are incapacitated for ordinary work by the hardships and cruelties to which they were subjected by their captors.

It is the same experience that the French have had since they began trading prisoners a few weeks ago. Neither the British nor French are surprised. They knew exactly what to expect. They realized that while they sent the captured Germans back home in good health and spirits, proofs of scrupulously fair and decent treatment during their captivity, the men returned by Germany would be for the most part an economic liability.

They knew, too, that they could not expect the German government to heed the international rule that exchanged prisoners shall not return to the army, nor need they expect the individual Germans to keep their parole.
The men sent home will return, as a matter of course, to some form of military service. Some have already. The records may be falsified, but there is no question of the fact.

Knowing this, England and France have decided, nevertheless, to trade considerable numbers of prisoners, as a humanitarian measure. It will give Germany an undeserved advantage and make the war a little harder to win, but they put humanity before military duty. They desire to be human to their own men, as well as to German prisoners. The United States will no doubt do likewise.

THE BATTLE CRY

In a recent battle south of the Somme, where Americans and Australians won a smashing victory, correspondents were particularly impressed with two things—the spirit with which the Americans fought, and the battle-cry they used.

It was the Americans' first appearance in action. Some of them had never seen a front-line trench before. They were young, unseasoned troops.
Their conduct was instinctive and characteristic. They charged the enemy with fixed bayonets, shouting the word "Lusitania!"

"Again and again," writes a correspondent, "the Australians heard that word on the Americans' lips as though there was something in the sound of it strengthening to their souls and terrifying to the enemy. They might well have been terrifying to any German who heard that name; for the American soldiers it is a call for vengeance."

It might be regarded as the battle-cry of the whole war, so far as Americans are concerned. It serves to recall the dastardly crime that first shocked America into an understanding of Prussianism and turned American sentiment distinctly against Germany. To us it is a perpetual reminder of duty and a summons to our fighting spirit.

To Germany it is the voice of doom. For every American sent down with the Lusitania a thousand Germans will die from American bullets and at the point of American bayonets.

And these Americans were from the 33rd Division, of which the Dixon company, the 123rd Artillery, are a part.

SOCIAL NOTES

The Kaiser was to have spent last Sunday in Paris, but he was unavoidably detained by a little party that General Foch had arranged for him in the country, near Chateau Thierry, and the party proved to be such a success that Bill isn't feeling well (one doesn't after some of the most successful parties), and just now his plans are indefinite. He isn't sure just when he will go to Paris, and may not be able to get there at all.

In fact, we have it on pretty good authority that there is some hard feeling between a number of the folks that took part in the Chateau Thierry picnic and that some of the guests that General Foch had invited, among them some visiting Yankees, got rather enthusiastic and boisterous, even rough, and there was shooting and a number of people got hurt, and the Kaiser and his friends gathered the impression that their visit was not as popular as it might be. They may decide to go right back home and not repeat the visit.

MRS. M. ELLSWORTH

HILL DIED SUNDAY

Estimable Lady Passed Away at Daughter's Home
After A Long Illness

A PRIVATE FUNERAL

Mrs. Martha M. Ellsworth Hill passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Saxmann, at one o'clock Sunday afternoon after a long and active life of over seventy-one years. Mrs. Hill had been ill for a number of months.

Martha M. Ellsworth was the daughter of Rev. S. E. Bradley and Jane Wright Bradley, and was born at Windom, Bradford county, Pa., January 10th, 1847. At Windom her girlhood was lived and there she was married to S. G. Ellsworth on May 30th, 1868. Nine children were born, four of whom survive her. These are Dr. Harriet E. Saxmann, of this city; Mrs. H. M. Bransford, of OPort-land, Oregon; L. E. Ellsworth, of Cortland, Ohio; and D. E. Ellsworth, of Detroit, Michigan.

In 1914 Mrs. Ellsworth was again married, becoming the wife of M. A.
Hill, at Schenectady, New York, and in New York she made her home until the past five years which have been spent in Dixon with her daughter,
Dr. Harriet Saxmann.

She was in every way a gracious and delightful woman and a devoted Christian. She was for many years a member of the Methodist church and was an active club woman, being identified with many of the more important clubs and lodges. She was an indefatigable temperance worker and held a prominent place on the platform when Frances Willard made her memorable addresses. In all things she was a leader and up to the very last was actively engaged in Red Cross work.

The funeral will be private and will be held at the residence of Dr.
and Mrs. R. B. Saxmann. Rev. E.
C. Lumsden, pastor of the Methodist church of this city, will officiate.

NO GERMAN BLOOD IN HIS VEINS, HE SAYS

LEE COUNTY MAN HOPES NONE OF HIS EARLY ANCESTORS WERE HUNS

In the account of last week's meeting of the district appeal board at Freeport the Freeport Journal-Standard has the following to say that is of interest to readers of the Telegraph:

H. M. Freas, of Lee county, became displeased when he was asked the question whether or not he was of German descent. He replied tartly,
"I claim no German blood in my veins. I am an American, a Pennsylvania dutchman, born there and came west." "But," said Mr. Car-uenter, "going back into the 'dark ages,' your ancestors were Germans, were they not?"

"I don't know," said Mr. Freas.

TO RESTORE NEW SALEM

Lloyd George Sends Money
To Help Illinois Historical Movement

THE WORK IS GOING ON

By Associated Press

Springfield, July 22.—Prime Minister David Lloyd George of England is the latest contributor to the fund being raised to restore New Salem, near Petersburg, once the home of Abraham Lincoln, according to T. P.
Reep, chairman of the committee on sites of Old Salem Lincoln League.

In response to a letter telling what is intended the English statesman forwarded a check for an English Pound Sterling. This limit had been set by Mr. Reep in order that the contribution of Mr. Lloyd George might be nominal.

"In reply to your letter of May 17
I shall be very pleased to contribute to the fund for preserving Abraham

Lincoln's old town as a public memorial and park," Mr. Lloyd George's letter says. "For that purpose I enclose a cheque for 1 pound. It is perhaps only since the great world war began that people have come to realize how much Lincoln's work for the United States meant to the cause of human freedom in all nations." The letter was dated June 22.
Governor Frank O. Lowden has also contributed.

The work of restoring the village southeast of Petersburg is going on steadily. Cellars of houses, long disappeared, are being excavated and marked preparatory to building the log superstructures. Among the many building sites positively identified are the Rutledge tavern, where Lincoln courted Ann Rutledge, and that of Offutt's store where Lincoln was a clerk.

A pageant will be given on the village site in celebration of the centennial anniversary of Illinois statehood. The date for this has not been decided on.

GUARD AGAINST TRENCH
FEVER IN THIS COUNTRY

Illinois Board of Health Issues Warning Against Dread Disease

CAUSED BY A LOUSE

Springfield, July 22.—Trench fever,
a disease common to soldiers, said to be caused by a germ carried by lice, might come to America if precautionary measures are not taken, according to a bulletin issued by the Illinois state department of health. Speaking of experiments in Europe, the bulletin says:

"The Illinois department of public health is calling attention to the discovery partly for the encouragement of the relatives of the boys in khaki
but especially to urge care in the extermination of the body louse. It is not impossible that trench fever may come over to this side of the Atlantic just as malaria fever is getting into Great Britain.

"Physicians must be on the alert to detect and quarantine every case at the earliest possible moment. The fact that it is proven to be a communicable disease makes it obligatory, according to the general rules of the Illinois department, that even a suspicious case be reported immediately.
On the other hand, it is reported that in some sections physicians have been in the habit of jokingly calling obscure ailments 'trench fever'.
Trench fever is no joke."

In telling of the methods used in the European experiments, in which soldiers offered themselves for the benefit of science, the bulletin says:
"Trench fever is new to Americans, but with the sending of our army to France the medical corps undertook to solve the problem.

Though no microscope has yet found the germ it was suspected that it was a germ disease. It was not found that any animal aside from man was susceptible to its effects. Volunteers were asked to submit themselves to experiment. Bloc was taken from seven cases of trench fever and healthy men were injected with the blood, or with some portion of it. Of the 34 volunteers 23 developed the fever; but out of 16 who received the whole blood 15 developed the disease. The demonstrated that the disease was due to some form of germ in the blood and the next question was how the germ was communicated.

"Suspicion fell upon the body louse which also carries the germ of typhus fever. Lice from trench fever patients were permitted to bite 22 healthy men, and 12 of these developed the fever; while four men who were bitten by lice taken from healthy men remained unaffected and eight other men living under exactly the same conditions and surroundings failed to show evidence of the disease. It was found further that those receiving the blood injections developed the fever in from 10 to 20 days, while those infected by lice required from 15 to 35 days to develop the disease.

"The average loss of weight of the men infected was from 20 to 25 pounds. All the patients recovered.
"With the discovery that trench fever is a germ disease, and the body louse is the agent by which the contagion is spread, it is clear that this malady can be prevented by using the same measures as are used to prevent typhus fever."

ST. LOUIS BREWERIES HAVE BEER ENOUGH DO THEM 3 MONTHS

But Government's Order
Curtailling Institutions
Worries St. Louis

MEANS LOSS TO CITY Closing of Breweries Would Throw 25,000 Out of Jobs In Missouri City

By Associated Press
St. Louis, July 22.—St. Louis, known nationwide as a brewery center, views with concern the recent federal order which, through curtailment of the coal supply, may force manufacturers of beer and other malt products to close their places of business some time next year. The order promulgated by Fuel Administrator Garfield is taken here to mean that breweries cannot count upon a coal supply beyond that needed to use up materials now in process of manufacture, including malt already manufactured.

August A. Busch, president of a St. Louis brewing concern, asserted that his various plants have on hand enough material to run them for more than a year, including 850,000 bushels of manufactured malt stored in the cellars. On this basis his business would probably outlive by at least six months others with smaller supplies.

C. Norman Jones, secretary-treasurer of the St. Louis Brewing Association, declared the average period that most of the breweries here could keep in operation after January 1, would be six months; several of them would be closed by February 1, he said.

According to estimates here, 25,000 persons would be thrown out of employment if the breweries closed and more than $80,000,000 of capital invested in buildings and equipment would be rendered useless until they could be converted to some use sanctioned by the government. In addition the great barley crop predicted for the summer would largely go to waste, Jones said, and the hops growing industry in Oregon, Washington, California and New York would practically be destroyed.

The closing of all saloons in Missouri, which would necessarily follow the adoption of national prohibition, would deprive the city of annual taxes aggregating more than $900,000.

THINK EXPLOSIVES MIX DURING FLIGHT

FRENCH SCIENTISTS THINK NEW GERMAN SHELLS WORK ON NEW PRINCIPLE

By Associated Press
Paris.—That the bursting charge of shells from the German long range guns is mixed while the projectiles are in actual flight is the belief of French scientists, according to a technical journal published here.

When the shelling of Paris began it was noticed that the explosion of a shell produced a cloud of black smoke mixed with a little that was white and accompanied by a strong smell of ether. Recently the smoke has been entirely white and very light, the ether odor persisting.

No shell that failed to explode has been found, nor even an entire fuse, indicating how delicate and reliable the explosive is. This fact leads experts to suppose that the shell is charged with two liquid explosives, separated by the perforated partition which is known to exist in the center of the projectile.

When the shell is fired at a high angle the liquid in the upper end combines with that in the lower chamber, and churned by the violent rotation, produces at the moment of impact, three minutes later, a perfect mixture. This would explain, it is said, the enormous shock when fired and the remarkable uniformity of the explosions.

TO SELL TOWN AT PUBLIC AUCTION

By Associated Press
London.—Any man whose ambition is to own a whole town will have an opportunity to satisfy his desire here next month. By direction of Lord Stalbridge, the owner, the entire town of Shaftesbury will be put on the auction block, including private houses, banks, postoffices, stores, offices, hotels and three saloons. The town is located in a picturesque part of Derbyshire, perched on the top of a hill in the midst of rolling farm country. The nearest railway station is three miles distant, at Semley.

Sales of great estates are frequent in these days, when the taxes are eating up profits, and many of the younger generation of the nobility are losing their lives on the battle fields. This is the first sale of an entire town which has been arranged away between Chatham, at the Elbow, and Highland Light, at the extreme tip of the cape. The firing was heard for miles and brought thousands to the beach, from which the flashes of the guns and the outline of the U-boat were plainly visible. Possible danger to the onlookers was not thought of until a shell whizzed over their heads and splashed in a pond a mile inland. Three other shells buried themselves in the sands of the beach.

U-BOAT SINKS BARGES NEAR U. S. SHORE

The survivors of the tow, with the exception of the two injured, were taken to the Orleans coast guard station, communication with which by telephone under navy regulations was not permitted. No information could be obtained from official sources on the cape.

U-Boat 400 Feet Long
Botovich and another man from one of the barges, both of whose arms had been injured, were removed to the private hospital of Dr. James McHugh. Later, Botovich was taken to a hospital in Boston. The survivors lost all their personal effects and some of them who were having their turn in their bunks when the U-boat appeared came ashore in their night clothing.

The tug Perth Amboy with her four barges in line was puffing along leisurely just off the shoals two miles from shore at 11 o'clock this morning when the U-boat, of an estimated length of 400 feet, rose suddenly one mile seaward and trained her guns on the tow. A moment later, and without warning to the crew, a shell struck the second barge amidships. The empty craft doubled up and sank so quickly that her crew barely had time to lower their small boat.

Capt. J. H. Tapley of the tug had sounded his whistle as soon as the U-boat was sighted and ordered the barges abandoned.

Fire on Barge Half an Hour
The first shot was followed by a rain of shells that dropped on and all about the Perth Amboy and her barges. A lucky shot next sank the last barge. Meanwhile hits on the tug had set her afire, but she stood by her barges to the finish.

The third barge in the line, the smallest of all, proved a hard mark, an dthe German gunners occupied half an hour in disposing of her.

By this time the firing had alarmed the whole cape and cries for assistance were sent broadcast. No American warships, however, appeared to be in the vicinity, and the exhibition of German gunnery went on methodically.

Airmen Dart Toward Enemy.
Then two hydroairplanes rose from the station at Chatham and, flying low, darted toward the enemy as though to attack. It could not be seen that they dropped any bombs, but the Germans evidently anticipated an attack from the air, for they stopped firing and elevated their guns against the hydroairplanes. They did not fire, however, and a moment later submerged.

The planes circled about where the enemy was last seen and then turned their noses toward their station. Scarcely had they reached shore when the U-boat reappeared and resumed its attack on the tug and the one light barge remaining afloat.

Both the tug and this barge were in flames and were held where they were by the sunken barges, one of which with a load of stone, made an effective anchor.

Lifeboats Menaced By Shells.
When the firing began the crews lost no time in abandoning the tow. Each of the four barges had one small boat intended to carry only five persons, and all of the craft were greatly overloaded. In addition, the occupants were exposed to constant danger from shell fire.

Several merchant craft were in the vicinity, and, regardless of the menace to themselves, went to the rescue of the crews and towed the small boats to shore. The men of the Perth Amboy, who stood by their ship until it was ablaze from bow to stern, were taken off by lifeboats from the coast guard station.

The U boat was still trying to find vulnerable spots in the Perth Amboy and the remaining barge when the hydroairplanes again approached. At sight of the planes the submarine again submerged and did not reappear.

8 Women, 5 Children Escape.
The three women and five children did not suffer physical harm, although one of the women, who had been making her first trip at sea, fainted after she had been placed in a small boat.

The German commander either took a long chance or had an exact chart of the dangerous shoals and shifting sandbars off the cape. It would be impossible for him to submerge to any great depth, and the scene of his exploits was not one in which undersea boats might be expected to operate. Tonight he was being hunted by patrol vessels and other war craft.

Warships Hunt U-Boat.
Washington, D. C., July 21.—An enemy submarine is operating off the Massachusetts coast, the navy department was advised today. The Orleans naval station on Cape Cod, near Chatham, reported sighting a tug and three barges on fire, having been shelled by a submarine, which was seen.

American warships from the first naval district are out after the submarine.

The navy department announced today that three men are known to be dead, forty-seven are missing, and twelve are unaccounted for as the result of the sinking of the United States cruiser San Diego last Friday off the Long Island coast. The men unaccounted for are believed to have been on leave.

Tug and Barges Worth $100,000.
New York, July 21.—The tug Perth Amboy was owned by the Lehigh Valley railroad, and according to estimates of marine men here, was worth about $100,000. The value of the barges was estimated at approximately $90,000.

I. C. RY. IMPROVEMENTS AT AMBOY ARE COSTLY

the place was central between Dubuque and Clinton. It is 114 miles from Amboy to Dubuque and exactly the same distance between Amboy and Clinton. Under the new rules of operation every train crew figures on a run of 100 miles as the minimum. At present with Freeport one turning point and Dubuque the other, the company pays for more time than the men actually do. In time this runs into large money. Railroads do not object to paying overtime but to pay for time not actually used is mad management. This the company learned and the improvement at Amboy is the result of an improvement in management.

May Be Division Point.
No one knows what will be done relative to new division points, but it goes without saying that when the work is finished at Amboy there will be a decided change in divisions. And the plan put in operation may be this: Amboy to Dubuque and Amboy to Clinton. By this plan the company will pay overtime to each crew, the distance being 14 miles over the minimum, but that will be money in pocket, so to speak, and a far better plan than paying for time not used in taking trains over the road.

Cost Half a Million.
The original appropriation made by the company for this work was $350,000, but before the work is completed this sum will be near the half million mark.

The new yards will consist of five tracks of 100-car length. In addition there will be one switch lead track of 50-car length. The yards will be built so that additional tracks may be laid in the future. All tracks will be uniform and will accommodate 100 cars.

The new yard is going in just to the south of the present coal chutes and east of the mail line.

The yards will extend across the farm owned by F. L. Dabler and a portion of the farm owned by Henry Walters.

The total length of the yards will be 5000 cars.

For fill, the company has purchased land from Charles Shamberger and Charles Little, where a steam shovel is now in operation at the borrow pit.

For South Bound Work
The yard acreage is 17 acres. The new yards will be used as south bound yard. The north yard remains as it is except, of course, a few minor changes for necessary tracks to and from the new roundhouse.

The roundhouse will be constructed of brick and concrete with 12 complete stalls and will be so arranged that 24 stalls may be erected if necessary. Each stall will have a concrete washout and pit, and two of the stalls will be equipped with drop pits for heavy work.

New Machine Shop
There will also be a new machine shop, 30x60 or 75 feet in size. This shop will be provided with washrooms for the employees, shower bath etc. In addition there will be several more minor buildings and store-rooms. There will be an office for the yard foreman, the most complete in this part of the country.

The new turn table will be the largest on the entire system, being a 100-foot table.

The smokestack will be constructed of brick, 125 feet high and 16 feet at the base. The new pump house will be located about 100 feet west and south of the old pump house and will be operated by gasoline.

The contract work is being done by outside parties. Zitterreal & Company of Webster City, Ia., have the contract for building the roundhouse and J. D. Lynch of Moline is building the new yards.

It is expected that the yards and other improvements will be ready by October 1st.

Moth's Wing Movement.
The moth has a curious habit, developed during many centuries, when at rest, or crawling slowly about the leaves and stems of plants, of keeping up a constant, gentle, fanning motion of the wings, which when seen from a short distance appears like a snake's head in the act of striking.

Debt to Civilization.
"Every savage woman, we understand, was wedded to some man, and here is one great difference between her and her civilized descendants. The full, independent life of the single woman belongs to the present day."

Disregard the Source.
It is always safe to learn, even from our enemies.—Colton.

PLAN STATE BUILDING SCHEME TO COST TEN MILLION DOLLARS

Elaborate Scheme for Arrangement of New Buildings Projected.

TO WORK GRADUALLY
No Immediate Intention Of Putting Scheme Into Operation Now.

By Associated Press
Springfield, Ill., July 22.—An elaborate Illinois state government building plan involving an estimated expenditure of approximately ten million dollars and large accretions of land adjoining the state house, has been projected by Edwin D. Martin of Chicago, supervising architect of the state, and awaits approval of the proper authorities before they are accepted by the Illinois department of public works as an objective.

While there is no immediate intention of attempting to put the plan into reality by actual building or asking appropriations for such construction, it was believed desirable to formulate a scheme of building to meet the needs of the future. Blue prints have been prepared and they include the Centennial building which is to stand just south of the capitol on ground recently purchased for the purpose.

No announcement of the details of the plans have been made by the department of public works and buildings. It is known that the scheme calls for extending the state property east to the Chicago and Alton railroad a distance of one block and west to College street, one block beyond the present western boundary of state property. Land to the north of the capitol is owned by the state as far as Adams street between First and Second streets. The plan if carried out would make necessary condemnation of a considerable amount of property now owned by individuals.

Plans for the Centennial Memorial building, for which $100,000 has been appropriated by the legislature as a beginning, are complete and await approval of the state art commission.

The structure as planned will stand facing the state house and connected with it by a colonnade, Charles street, which now bisects the state property, will be filled in and sodded over.

The Centennial Memorial building will cost more than a million dollars and will house Memorial Hall, the state historical library, and will afford room for offices on the south.

When the fiftieth general assembly appropriated $100,000 for the building it was done with the understanding that other amounts were to be forthcoming as needed. The money available will be sufficient to begin excavation and foundation work. It is the intention to have enough completed by fall so as to have the corner stone laying exercises October 5, when the Lincoln statue will be unveiled.

The past winter the state has been busy removing a dozen residences from the ground south of the state house where the Centennial building is to stand. Among the residences was that of former Governor Ninian Edwards in which Lincoln married Mary Todd. This building was torn down because its weakened condition made its removal impossible.

YANKEE SOLDIERS IN FRANCE MAKE GARDENS

GREEN STUFF FOR AMERICAN TROOPS RAISED BY THEM IN ODD MOMENTS.

By Associated Press
Chicago, July 22.—The various duties performed by the American soldiers in France this spring and summer include truck gardening, according to the Plane News, printed by members of the American Expeditionary Forces, a copy of which has been received here.

"That's what I am proud of," said Captain Buchanan, commanding officer of field 8, pointing to a strip of two hundred acres of potatoes and beans, the newspaper said, adding that the immense garden was being tilled by shifts of half a hundred husky lads in their spare moments.

"This plan should be carried out all over the A. E. F.," continued the Captain. "It saves railroad transportation from United States gardens to seacoast, ocean travel to this side and railroad transportation from point of embarkation over here. It will give us fresher food and more of it, with the chance to save our mess funds."

"Do you wonder I favor the plan and my men are working so hard to make this patch big enough to feed every man in this school? My men are doing all the work and to them belongs all the credit."

Strength of Spanish Fly.

Spanish fly is an insect much used in medicine as an irritant. It is gathered from the lilac bushes of southern Europe at night by shaking the branches, the collector's hands and face being protected by veils and gloves against the volatile acid discharge of the beetles. Then the insects are killed by immersion in hot vinegar. One one-hundredth (1-100) of a grain of Spanish fly placed on the lip rapidly causes a blister.—W. E. Aughinbaugh in Leslie's.

"Luck," said Uncle Eben, "is what you talk about when somebody else works hard an' gits what you was tryin' to grab offhand."

Eased His Conscience.

Deah Buckland when at Westminster used to tell a curious story of a brown paper parcel which he received one day by post. After many wrappings had been unfolded he found a small black splinter of oak about an inch and a half long. The writer of the unsigned note accompanying the parcel said that when he was a boy, many years before, he had chipped the splinter off the coronation chair. As age advanced his conscience grew troublesome, and he asked the dean to be kind enough to restore the splinter to its place.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Hollow Pretense.

How hollow is all our pretension to progress, when we have never devised a punishment for the human trip hammer who always thinks it is necessary to smite one on the shoulder in greeting, or the human vise who puts forth every ounce of his strength in shaking hands.

A Wise Prayer.

Give us what is good, whether we pray for it or not; and avert from us the evil, even if we pray for it.—Prayer of Socrates.

A Life of Picaresque.

Mother, nurse put me right into the coldest part of the sea.—Punch.

Jews Lived Longest in Babylon.

By far the largest part of Jewish history, tradition, literature, etc., is not Palestinian but Babylonian. In Babylon lived, for the longest time, the greatest number of Jews together. There their principal religious works were written, especially the Talmud, which is a higher authority with the Jews than the Bible.

MULTIPLYING MAN POWER and HORSE POWER

A Parrett Tractor

Will do the work of eight to ten horses and two to five men. It solves the present labor shortage because it makes possible the production of the large crops with a small number of men and horses.

In fact a boy can operate a PARRETT TRACTOR—and any implement or combination—as well as a man. The sensitive fuel governor adopts the fuel consumption to the job in hand using only as much fuel as is needed. The PARRETT is a self-steering—follows the furrow accurately in any soil. No special hitch is required. On the belt it can handle a 20 to 26 inch separator or do any other belt job requiring equal power. It pulls three mold boards easily at a speed of 2 3-8 miles per hour. It burns kerosene successfully, economically.

The PARRETT TRACTOR has proved its worth by five years of most exacting service—in every section of the country; in the tough sod of the Northwest; in the mucky rice lands of the South—it has been proved a practical, profitable farm power unit both for drawbar and belt work.

CHAPTER XX

Carey sat huddled dejectedly in his chair. Old age seemed to have descended upon him within the hour; with sagging shoulders, mouth half open in terror, and the wrinkled skin around his thin jaws and the corners of his eyes hanging in greenish-white folds, he looked very tired and very pitiful. Despite his terror, however, he was not yet daunted; for with the picture of two skeletons before him he saw a gleam of hope and tried to fight back.

"Twenty years is a long time, McGraw," he quivered, "and it's hard to trace a man by a mere similarity of names."

"You can be traced through the Traders National, where you banked that check, and your identity established beyond a doubt. I can trace your career in this state, step by step, from the day you arrived in it."

"Carey smiled—a very weak sickly smile, but bespeaking awakened confidence."

"In the face of which, McGraw, your knowledge of our United States' law will convince you that you cannot convict a man with money enough to fight indefinitely, on such flimsy twenty-year-old evidence found in an abandoned canteen. You cannot identify that skeleton, and you will have to prove that—that well, you'll have to produce oral testimony, or I'll be given the benefit of the doubt."

"I must prove that the man who killed and robbed Oliver Corblay is T. Morgan Carey, and not a stranger masquerading under your name, eh? all right, T. Morgan. I told you I had this story profusely illustrated."

Bob stepped to the door of the private office which led into the hall. He opened it and Sam Singer stepped inside. Bob turned to Carey.

"Permit me to present Oliver Corblay's Indian servant, Mr. Carey. He is a little older and more stolid since you saw him last, but his memory—"

"San Singer moved forward a few feet and glanced sharply at Carey."

"I think he recognizes you in spite of your beard," said Bob sorrowfully, "and I see no reason—"

"Take him away," panted Carey, on the instant that Sam Singer, with a peculiar low guttural cry, sprang upon the land-grabber. Bob came behind the Indian, grasped him by the chin, and with his knee in the small of the Cahulla's back as a fulcrum, gently pried him away from his victim and held him fast. Carey lay quivering on the floor, and Bob looked down at him.

"Are you satisfied?" he asked.

Carey nodded feebly, and Bob marched Sam Singer to the door, opened it and gently propelled him out into the hall. He locked the door and returned to the desk.

"I knew the sight of two skeletons would hearten you up, Carey, until you'd be as saucy as a badger. But you're as tame as a pet fox now, so let's get down to business. Don't argue with me, I've got you where the hair is short; I want a million dollars, and if I do not get it within half an hour I won't take it at all and I will no longer protect you from that Indian."

Carey climbed back into his chair. "If I accept your terms," he said huskily, "how am I to know that you will keep your word?"

"You will not know it. You'll just have to guess. When you do what I want you to do I will surrender to you the original document found in the canteen. Is that satisfactory?"

"I guess so. But I cannot give you a million dollars on five minutes' notice McGraw."

"It's quite a chunk of chas to have on hand, I'll admit. How much can you give me?"

"Five hundred thousand, and even then I'll have to overdraw my accounts with three banks."

"I wish my credit was as good as yours, Carey. Your banks will stand for the overdraft, of course. You'll have to arrange it some other way if they will not."

"I can't give you a cent over half a million to-day, no matter what you do," pleaded Carey piteously, and Bob realized that he was speaking the truth.

"Do not worry, Carey," he replied, "we're going to do business; without getting nasty with each other. I'll take your promissory note, at seven per cent, and you can secure me with a little mortgage on your Spring-street business block. It's worth a million and a half. I am not so unreasonable as to imagine even a rich man like you can produce a million dollars cash on such notice, so during the past week I took the liberty of having the title searched and an instrument of first mortgage drawn up by myself. All we have to do is to insert the figures and then you can sign it. I understand you have a notary within hailing distance. Your own thoughtfulness in having this transfer of my water right ready for my signature suggested this course to me. It occurred to me that I could sell this mortgage to any Los Angeles bank."

Carey covered his face with his hands and quivered.

"What bank do you anticipate selling it to?" he mumbled presently.

"I didn't have any particular choice."

If you have enemies I will not sell you into their hands, and you can make the mortgage for as long a period as you please, up to three years. Give me a list of banks to keep away from."

"One moment, McGraw. Don't go for a minute or two. I—I'd like to believe that you say is true, but the trouble is—you see, McGraw, I have never encountered your point of view heretofore. Tell me, McGraw—don't lie to me—do you feel the slightest desire to see me suffer, or is this—er—brotherly-love talk of yours plain bumcombe?"

Bob McGraw advanced towards the man he had beaten. He held out his hand. "I try to be a man," he said—"to be too big to hate and put myself on a level with a brute. Won't you shake hands with me?"

Carey regarded him with frank curiosity.

"Say," he said, "are you religious?"

"No. Only human."

"Perhaps," said Carey dubiously, "but it doesn't seem possible that I should meet two white men in this nigger world. I think the species became extinct with the death of my friend Hennage."

"Your friend—"

"Why not? He liked me—I know he did. And I liked him. I'm glad he's dead—no, I'm not—I was glad an hour ago, but I'm sorry now. Had he lived I would have made of him my friend, for he was the only human being I have ever met that I could trust implicitly. He was your partner and he warned me to keep off. Do you think, McGraw, that I would have let you beat me out of that land if it hadn't been for Hennage? I didn't dare rush those selections through for patent until he was dead—and then it was too late. Had you left your affairs in any other hands I would have crushed you, but Hennage could not be bought. I didn't even try. He was above a price."

"Is that why you failed to act immediately after you became convinced that I was an outlaw and would not dare claim the land when it should be granted to my clients?" demanded Bob.

Carey nodded. "I met Hennage in Bakersfield, and he told me to keep my hands off those applications."

"Then he bluffed you, Mr. Carey. Harley P. Hennage was my friend, but not my partner. He did not have five cents invested in my scheme. I never mentioned it to him, and neither did my wife. His threat was a bluff, and where he got his information of my land deal is a mystery, the solution of which perished with Harley P."

Carey sat in his chair, with his head bowed. He was clasping and unclasping his fingers in a manner pathetically suggestive of helplessness.

"I don't understand," he mumbled. "He told me to keep off and I kept off. He sighed. 'I'd have given a million dollars for a friend like him. I—I—never—had—one.'"

Bob McGraw drew T. Morgan Carey's mortgage from his pocket, scratched a match on his trouser-leg and held it under the fluttering leaves. Slowly the little flame mounted, and when it threatened to scorch his fingers the promoter of Donnaville tossed the blazing fragments into a convenient cuspidor. He looked up and saw Carey regarding him curiously.

"That was your mortgage," the land-grabber said wonderingly. "You have burned half a million dollars."

"I was selling you my friendship—at cut rates, Mr. Carey. I was worthy of Hennage's trust and friendship until a few minutes ago. Harley P. Hennage never did mean or a cowardly act, and to-day I used my power over you to extort half a million dollars from you to further a scheme of mine. I figured that the end justified the means. It did not, and I ask you to forgive me."

Carey smiled wanly. "It's up-hill work, McGraw, but I'll forgive you. What great scheme is this of yours that caused you to appear unworthy of the friend who was so worthy of you? I have a great curiosity to understand you. Who knows? Perhaps I may end up by liking you?"

And then Bob McGraw sat down by his enemy and unfolded to him his dream of Donnaville.

"Think of it, Mr. Carey," he pleaded "Think what my scheme means to the poor devils who haven't got our brains and power! Think of the women and little children toiling in sweat-shops; of the families without money, without hope, without food and without coal, facing the winter in such cities as Chicago and New York, while a barren empire, which you and I can transform to an Eden, waits for them there in the north," and he waved his arm toward Donnaville.

"There's glory enough for us all, Mr. Carey. Won't you come in with me and play the big game? Be my backer in this enterprise and let the future wipe out the mistakes of the past. You've got a chance, Carey. What need have you for money? It's only a game you're playing man—a game that fascinates you. You've sold your manhood for money—and you have never had a friend! Good God what a tragedy! Come with me, Carey, into Owens valley, and be a builder of empire. Let your dead past bury itself and start fresh again. You are not a young man any longer, and in all your busy life you have accomplished nothing of benefit to the world. You have subscribed to charities, and then robbed the objects of your charity of the land that would have made them independent of you. Think of the good you can do with the proceeds of the evil you have done! Ah, Carey, Carey! There's so much fun in just living, and I'm afraid you've never been young. You've never dreamed! And you've never had a friend that loved you for what you were. Do you know why, Carey? Because you weren't worth loving. You have received from the world to date just what you put into it—envy and greed and hate and malice and selfishness, and at your passing the curses of your people will be your portion. Come with me and be a Pagan, my friend, and when you have finished the job I'll guarantee to plant you up on the slope of Kearsarge, where your soul, as it mounts to the God of a Square Deal, can look down on the valley that you have prepared for a happy people, and say: 'That is mine. I helped create it, and I did it for love. I finished what the Almighty commenced, and the job was worth while.' Will you play the game with me, T. Morgan Carey, and get some joy out of life?"

The land-grabber—the parasite who had lived only to destroy—looked up at Bob McGraw.

"Would you trust me?" he queried huskily.

"I burned your mortgage," said Bob smiling.

"I'll think it over—friend" Carey replied. "I never do things in a hurry. It's a habit I have, and I don't quite understand you. I must think it over."

"Do, Mr. Carey. And now I must toddle along. Adios."

Carey shook his hand, and they parted.

San Pasqual is still a frontier town—a little drier, a little shabbier and more down at the heel than when we saw it first. There have been few changes—the few that have occurred having arrived unheralded and hence have remained undiscovered. For instance, it is not generally known that Mrs. Pennycook has lost control of her husband. Yet such is the fact. She is still a great stickler for principle, but she trembles if her husband looks at her. It appears that Dan Pennycook's half-hearted accusation of Miss Pickett as the author of the anonymous note found on the body of Borax O'Rourke preyed on the spinner's mind, and when Bob McGraw started an investigation she could stand the strain no longer. She fled in terror to the Pennycook home and made certain demands upon Mrs. Pennycook; who took refuge in her well-known reputation for probity and informed Miss Pickett that she was "actin' crazy like"; whereupon Miss Pickett sought Dan Pennycook and hysterically confessed to the authorship of that fatal anonymous note, alleging as extenuating circumstances that she had been aided and abetted therein by Mrs. Pennycook. To quote a common-place saying, Mrs. Pennycook had made the ball and Miss Pickett fired it. She begged Dan Pennycook to use his influence with Donna to have the investigation quashed, else would Miss Pickett make a public confession and disgrace the name of Pennycook.

Hence, when Mr. Pennycook appeared at the Hat Ranch and asked Donna to request her husband to forget about that anonymous letter, Donna guessed the honest fellow's distress and accordingly the matter was forgotten by everybody—except Dan Pennycook. He has not forgotten. He remembers every time he looks at Mr. Hennage's watch. He has never said anything to Mrs. Pennycook—which makes it all the harder for her—but contents himself with a queer look at the lady when she becomes "obstreperous like"—and that suffices. After all, she is the mother of his children, and God bless him with more heart than he has.

Miss Pickett is no longer the post-mistress; also she is no longer Miss Pickett, although in this respect she is not unlike a politician who has all the emoluments of office without the honors, or vice versa if you will. In her forty-third year she married the only man who ever asked her—and he was a youth of twenty-five who suspected Miss Pickett of a savings account. She resigned from the post-office to marry him, and San Pasqual took a night off to give her a charivari. Two weeks after the ceremony Miss Pickett's husband, despairing of the savings, jumped a south-bound freight and was seen no more. Her triumph over the acquisition of the "Mrs." was so short-lived, and the San Pasquallians found it so difficult to rid themselves of the habit of calling her Miss Pickett, that Miss Pickett she remains to this very day.

The Hat Ranch still stands in the desert below San Pasqual. Bob McGraw has secured title to it, and safe within the old adobe walls Sam Singer and Soft Wind are rounding out their placid lives. Sam Singer is now one of the solid citizens of San Pasqual. He has succeeded to the hat business, and moreover he has money on deposit with Bob McGraw. It appears that Sam Singer, in accordance with Mr. Hennage's dying request, fell heir to the gambler's new gaiters. The first time he tried them on Sam detected a slight obstruction in the toe of the right gaiter. He removed this obstruction and discovered that it was a piece of paper money. Like all Indians, Sam was suspicious of paper money, so he took it to Bob McGraw, who gave him a thousand dollars for it. Sam Singer was well pleased thereat. He considered he had driven an excellent bargain.

In the lonely sage-covered windswept cemetery at San Pasqual there rises a black granite monument, severely plain, eminently befitting one who was not of the presuming kind. There is an epitaph on that monument which is worth recording here:

WHO SEEKS FOR HEAVEN
ALONE TO SAVE HIS SOUL,
MAY KEEP THE PATH BUT WILL NOT REACH THE GOAL;
WHILE HE WHO WALKS IN LOVE MAY WANDER FAR
YET GOD WILL BRING HIM
WHERE THE BLESSED ARE.
BENEATH THIS STONE
HARLEY P. HENNAGE
RESTS FROM HIS WANDERINGS.

One day T. Morgan Carey dropped off the north-bound train at San Pasqual, and learning that he had two hours to waste while waiting for the stage to start up country, he was seized with a morbid desire to wander through San Pasqual's queer cemetery. The only monument in the cemetery attracted his attention, and presently he found himself standing at the foot of Mr. Hennage's grave, reading the epitaph. It impressed him so greatly that he copied the verse in a little morocco-covered memorandum book.

"I wonder who was the genius that evolved that verse?" he muttered aloud, and to his great surprise a voice at his side answered him. It was a woman's voice.

"I do not know the author," she said, "but if you will read Henry Van Dyke's book 'The Other Wise Man,' you will find that little verse on the fly-leaf. Perhaps Van Dyke wrote it. I do not know."

T. Morgan Carey turned and lifted his hat. "Thank you, madam," he said. "I was particularly interested. I had a slight acquaintance with Mr. Hennage, and it seemed to me that the lines were peculiarly appropriate."

"My husband and I thought so. And if you will pardon me for suggesting it, Mr. Carey, it would be better if you would please leave the cemetery. An old enemy of yours, a Cahulla Indian, comes here three times a week, by my orders, to bring water for the blue grass on this grave. He is coming now."

"Thank you. And you are—"

"I am Donna Corblay."

Carey bowed and continued.

"Your husband told me once that he had some great plans afoot, and did me the honor to ask me to help him—"

"he paused, watching her wistfully—"

"and I want to know if you object to me as an associate of your husband in his work?"

Donna looked at him gravely. "I have neither bitterness nor revengeful feeling against you, Mr. Carey," she replied.

"I have suffered," he said, "but I haven't paid all of the price. Tell your husband that I want to help him. I have thought it over and I was coming to tell him myself. Tell him, please, that I would appreciate the privilege of being a minority stockholder in his enterprise and I will honor his sight drafts while I have a dollar left."

He lifted his hat and walked away, and Donna, gazing after him, realized that the past was dead and only the future remained. Carey's crime had been a sordid one, but with her broader vision Donna saw that the lives of the few must ever be counted as palfry sacrifices in the advancement of the race. Her father, her mother, Harley P. Hennage, Borax O'Rourke and the long, sad, barren years of her own girlhood had all been sacrifices to this man's insatiable greed and lust for power, and now that the finish was reached the truth of Bob McGraw's philosophy—that out of all great evils great good must come.

Truly selfishness, greed, revenge and inhumanity are but the burdens of a day; all that is small and weak and unworthy may not survive, while that which is great and good in a man must some day break its shackles and sweep him on to the fulfillment of his destiny. She saw her husband and his one-time enemy toiling side by side in the great, hot, hungry heart of Inyo, preparing homes for the helpless and the oppressed—working out the destinies of their people; and she cried out with the happiness that was hers.

Ab, yes they had all suffered, but now out of the dregs of their suffering the glad years would come bearing their precious burden of love and service. How puerile did the sacrifices of the past seem now—how terribly out of proportion to the great task that lay before them, with the sublime result already in sight! Surely there was only one quality in humankind that really mattered, softening suffering and despair and turning away wrath, and as Donna knelt by the grave of the man who had possessed that quality to such an extent that he had considered his life cheap as a means of expressing it, she prayed that her infant son might be endowed with the virtues and brains of his father and the wanderer who slept beneath the stone:

"Dear God, help me to raise a Man and teach him to be kind."

THE END

More on the Way.

In full view of the crowd in a very busy street two vendors of berries were busy with piles of thin wooden boxes, each scantily filled with immature fruit. Emptying box after box, the vendors deftly punched up one layer of the box bottom to a sharp angle pointed in the middle, propped it there with paper, and then refilled the receptacle, taking great care that the finest and freshest-looking berries should make a showy top covering.

One of the spectators grew indignant. "How in the world," he demanded, "do you expect to sell your wares when you openly show that they are not what they seem to be?"

"Aw, gwan," said the vender addressed. "This is New York, and there are more trains coming with more people."

Not a Challenge.

The postman handed him the letter. One glance at the envelope sent him nearly into hysterics.

"Heavens!" he cried, "the first challenge I ever got."

"Duel!" was in big letters on the outside of the envelope.

"But I can't fight and—"

So he hurried to the station house, explained that he knew of no enemy who should demand his blood and asked for protection.

Three blue-coated arms of the law presented themselves.

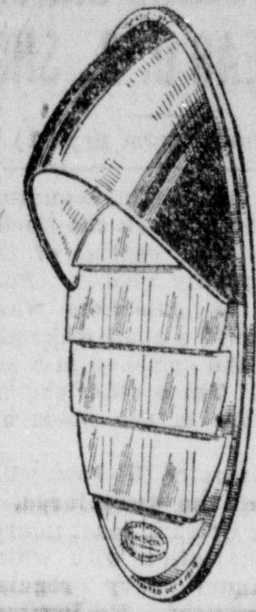

The detective force hurried out. By that time the desk sergeant had recovered.

He said it meant, "Due 1 cent."

BIG LEAGUES THROUGH TILL END OF THE WAR

The "Work or Fight" Order Compels Professionals To Work

NO MORE CONTESTS

Every Indication Is That Sunday's Games Mark Close of Season

Professional baseball is a thing of the past—at least for the period of the war. Following Secretary Baker's ruling that professional baseball is a non-essential occupation practically all of the big league teams have decided to close at once. Hope that some late ruling might make it possible for the game to continue during the season was abandoned yesterday.

Magnates waited patiently all day thinking that at the eleventh hour Washington officials might relent on their "work or fight" ruling and give the game time to adjust its affairs before passing out for the duration of the war. No word for encouragement came and at nightfall last night some of the clubs had ceased to operate. A few are hanging on, expecting to play today, and then quitting until such time as the country will no longer need its men to fight or engage in the essential occupations.

The day brought only a few developments, but none of an encouraging nature. Convinced that it was useless to go further, American Association magnates met here and voted to close up shop with the playing of yesterday's games. Taking the same attitude President Herrmann of the Cincinnati Reds wired the Cub officials that he would not send his team to Chicago for the double-header scheduled for this afternoon. Only 24 hours previously President Herrmann had said the games would be played, but evidently he underwent a change of heart.

Cubs Are Through. The abandoning of today's Cubs' battles means Mitchell's leaders are through with their chosen pastime. The North Siders closed their show yesterday in a blaze of blue, and today the athletes will set out in quest of essential work or places in the army or navy. Hollocher and O'Farrell set the pace for their mates by enlisting in the navy Saturday night. Their home in the immediate future will be the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

The official cancelling of play in the American League was expected to be announced at Cleveland today. This noon the magnates of Ban Johnson's league assembled before their chief to talk over the problem and there seems to be no chance for any other than a vote to close the parks and let the athletes go to work for the duration of the war.

ALLOT GROUNDS FOR WAR GARDENS

By Associated Press
London, July 22.—The food production department estimates that there is under cultivation in Great Britain more than 200,000 acres in allotments. Some of this land under cultivation by individuals is in the great parks of London, even Hyde Park not being spared. In the city the individuals pay about twenty-five cents a year for plots from thirty to forty feet in length to fifteen or twenty feet in width.

Food officials say there are more than 1,400,000 allotments and that about 100,000 acres of potatoes are growing in allotted ground.

SHIP YARDS NOW GET NEEDED STEEL

By Associated Press
Philadelphia, July 22.—Steel is now arriving at the big government shipbuilding plant at Hog Island in adequate quantities, according to H. W. Blood, an engineer for the American International Corporation.

"The fabrication of steel parts for ships," Mr. Blood said, "are making good, and the steel committee, recently appointed to see that the shipyards are stocked with steel parts, has done much toward the solution of the problem."

The Hog Island yard, the largest in the world, is preparing for its first launching on August 4. The ship is the Red Jacket. It is an 8000-ton freighter. 2 more 8000-ton freight carriers are nearly half completed. The second launching is expected to take place a week after the Red Jacket leaves the ways. The third vessel will follow shortly after the second, and then it will be a week or ten days before there are further launchings. After that Hog Island expects to turn out completed hulls at the rate of two a week.

CO-OPERATION AMONG BRITISH SHELL MAKERS

BRITISH MANUFACTURERS EFFECT BIG SAVING—RESULT OF STANDARDIZATION

By Associated Press
Manchester, England.—Cooperation is the watchword of the manufacturers in this district engaged in making munitions. Before the war each concern guarded its factory secrets zealously but when the plants were dedicated to the munitions needs of the government, all resources were pooled, trade jealousies were forgotten and factory secrets were freely exchanged to further the common cause.

More than 200 firms in this district undertook to carry out government contracts. In the case of shell firms unable to take over individually an entire contract, several club together and do five-sevenths of the work required. The remaining two-sevenths is performed at an assembly plant, and any profit made there is divided among the various contractors included in the group.

The government's Board of Management in the Manchester area has placed contracts for amounts running into many millions of pounds a year. Production amounts to 300,000 shells weekly, and vast quantities of other munitions supplies.

There was considerable waste in shell manufacture at the outset in private factories owing to the crude methods that had to be employed before the proper kind of equipment could be installed. The first price of 23 shillings for 18-pound shells has been reduced to 1 1/2 and 12 shillings, and it is stated that the manufacturers are making a larger profit now at the reduced prices.

Many of the converted plants turning out shells are run on a non-profit basis. Many others devote all net returns to philanthropic war or invest the money in war bonds.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS POPULAR

By Associated Press
The Hague.—The Boston baked bean, formerly despised except by the humble classes of Holland has been restored to public favor by the recent embargo on shipments of wheat from America. 40,000 acres of land have been converted into areas for growing beans and peas.

Queen Wilhelmina is setting an example for her subjects in cultivating cereals by growing rye on the lawn of her country estate at Het Loo.

Trade in food substitutes thrives amazingly. The police of Alkmaar recently seized 400 bales of roasted flower bulbs and 400 pounds of milled acorns which were intended for use in making coffee.

Much of the shortage of milk, butter, eggs, meat and fresh vegetables is due to the fact that Holland has to barter many of these good things for German coal and iron.

SIX DAYS

Automobile and Motorcycle Races At the State Fair.

Beginning on Monday, August 12, the State Fair will open with a series of motorcycle and automobile races and will be one of the greatest racing events of the year. Barney Oldfield, Chevrolet, Lewis, Tom Alley, Wild Bill Endicott, Doyle, Horey, Gotoff, Hofman, Kline, Callahan and many others have already entered and are determined to pull down the $7500 premium money. B. M. Davison, the secretary, announces that during the first week of the fair—beginning August 12th, Alto Polo will be played each afternoon and evening. This is the game that originated so much excitement and enthusiasm at the Fair two years ago. State Fair patrons will certainly welcome this return engagement of the auto polo boys.

Would Connect Seas.
A new project of American engineers is a giant canal 250 miles long to connect the Arctic ocean and the Baltic sea, extending from Kandalaska, on the White sea, to Tornen, near the Swedish frontier on the Gulf of Finland. The cost is estimated at $150,000,000.

Hot Meals on the Wing.
Since the only practical way by which the passengers of an airplane can have a hot drink or hot food is through the use of a vacuum bottle or jar, the idea has been suggested that the manufacturers of aircraft would do well to build into their machines a number of pockets or wall cases for vacuum bottles, so that the latter, filled with pre-heated food, could be carried in safety.—Scientific American.

The Poor Millionaire.

Andrew Carnegie once said that the cheapest commodity a community could purchase was a millionaire. He worked hard, he gave of his time, his ability, his money, his credit and his reputation to build up a community and to keep people employed, and all he got out of it was his board and clothes.—Wroe's Writings.

BRITISH LIST SHOWS YANKEES

By Associated Press
London.—The British "Navy List" which has just appeared is the first official publication of the kind to contain the names of certain American Naval officers. They are included in the British list because they have been attached to certain Admiralty departments for special work.

The list of "Ships and Vessels of the Royal Navy" show still further increase from the very impressive and lengthy list of a year ago, although the regular warships are no longer set down, and the list is limited to vessels taken over by the Admiralty for the duration of the war.

One page, which used to be devoted to the names of three honorary "Admirals of the Fleet" has shrunk to a single paragraph and a single name. It used to include the German Emperor, Prince Henry of Prussia and the Emperor of Russia. The first two have been crossed out altogether, while Nicholas who used to be listed as "His Majesty II, Emperor of all the Russias," is now merely "His Majesty Emperor Nicholas."

PROTECTED GIRL HAS PASSED AWAY

By Associated Press
East St. Louis, July 22.—Myrtle Gardner, a prominent figure in the congressional investigation of conditions here which led up to the race riots last year, died here of an illness of several months.

It was Miss Gardner, who in a sensational statement to Chairman Johnston of the congressional committee, told of being lured to a hotel operated by Steve Unk, who is now serving a sentence at Leavenworth, Kas., for white slavery. Her declarations regarding vice conditions here were illuminative and led to the general exposure of corruption embodied in a recent committee report to congress.

To protect the girl from persons who might attempt revenge, Chairman Johnston named her assistant secretary of the committee and placed her under constant federal surveillance.
